Quality and Craft

Eichholtz continues its commitment to master craftsmanship and luxurious materials with the introduction of over 200 beautifully designed products. Elegance and sophistication meet comfort and fine quality throughout the furniture, lighting and home accessory additions. Inspired by travels around the world, the spectrum of textures with influences from the vibrant antique markets of Europe harmonize with timeless contemporary design. Layering a soft neutral palette in rich, natural textures, juxtaposed with bold black accents and warm metallic finishes creates a balanced statement. The sensorial experience of the Eichholtz signature style is further expressed through the tactility of form, curved and extravagant in proportion for 2022. Stylish and refined, the new collection blends seamlessly into our portfolio of over 2500 unique pieces and any interior style.

“Eichholtz has always been about these long-term collaborative relationships, so more than ever, this is the moment to set out the Eichholtz identity and positioning in the luxury design market.”

MICHIEL HERKEMIJ, CEO EICHHOLTZ

A WORD FROM

MICHIEL HERKEMIJ

At the start of an exciting new chapter for Eichholtz, CEO Michiel Herkemij discusses the year ahead.

This year is without a doubt a milestone for Eichholtz. Our company, founded 30 years ago by Theo Eichholtz, has been built on a solid foundation of offering high quality design and truly excellent service, so as we enter a new chapter, our focus is on scaling up and globalising.

With pride and conviction, we are thrilled to communicate more distinctly who we are and what our plans are as a brand. This new concept magazine is just the start – an expression of what the Eichholtz lifestyle means.

Our main aim is to grow the business globally, building on our existing relationships and presence to become a more recognised name. We remain a business to business brand, but we realise that by creating more consumer facing touchpoints, we help and support our customers to sell our furniture. Our first step is an Eichholtz flagship store in the Design District of Miami, which will be operated by a much-valued partner, followed by the global rollout of partner-operated standalone stores including a new Eichholtz flagship in Amsterdam.

Our digital presence too, already significant, and active will step-up this year with plenty of well-designed and considered marketing and communication material available to support our treasured partners and customers. Eichholtz has always been about these long-term collaborative relationships, so more than ever, this is the moment to set out the Eichholtz identity and positioning in the luxury design market, to deliver a branded experience beyond our tradeshow presence. To tell our story with a louder, clearer voice.

These past few years have seen the world take on challenges we hadn't anticipated as a society. The way we live in our homes, the investment we make in design and our environments are more meaningful than ever. At Eichholtz our move has been towards creating a curated lifestyle, with a collection of furniture, lighting and accessories that has great depth and choice to ensure our customers can offer that to their customers too.

ADDING VALUE TO EICHHOLTZ

Our Chief Operating Officer Robin Goemans discusses this year's plans and reveals more about special projects in the pipeline.

My role is managing the end-to-end operations of Eichholtz, which brings with it a great opportunity to constantly question and refine what we do as a business, to elevate not just our design offer, but the way in which we work with our customers. Our customers are like family, and we'll do anything with them or for them to make their businesses successful. As Theo, our founder says, we love compliments, but we also embrace criticism, to help us grow as a company and continue to improve our service.

I often say that we are entrepreneurs who work with industry innovators and part of our strength is an ability to continuously change and to challenge the status quo. Whether that is examining our go-to-market strategy, how we manage our supply chain, our day-to-day practices, our support systems for customers, the key is to keep evolving.

For this year a targeted strategy to scale the business in the US is a key focus. We're proud of the fine reputation we've already built stateside, but 2022 is about raising the bar and bringing the complete luxury lifestyle experience to a wider audience. Along with brand awareness campaigns and greater visibility at trade fairs and in the press, we'll also be launching a series of Eichholtz flagship stores, starting with a truly fantastic site in the heart of Miami's Design District. We look forward to sharing more with you throughout the year.

During these unusual times I've come to appreciate the experience of interior design more than ever and how the lifestyle that we offer through our Eichholtz collections has greater resonance. When our products come to life through our considered styling, our Eichholtz flagship stores and supporting materials we can add value and opportunity to our customers' businesses and ultimately to people's lives and that matters to us.

“We are entrepreneurs who work with industry innovators and part of our strength is an ability to continuously change and to challenge the status quo”

ROBIN GOEMANS, CHIEF OPERATING OFFICER

DESIGNING A NEW COLLECTION

Creative director Edwin van der Gun explains how to put together a new Eichholtz collection.

When I began working at the company 15 years ago, I was drawn to Theo Eichholtz instinct for curation and concept. My job was very much about developing and sourcing products that would become part of a growing collection and establish a look that has over the years become so strong and recognisable that as a team, we have created a brand and a lifestyle, not just singular furniture, and lighting pieces.

Inspiration comes from everything around me: trips to Parisian and Italian antique markets and specialist dealers, auction houses, travel, and fashion. I'm looking at defining periods of design and architecture such as art deco, modernism, and Italian 1970s glamour - it's all in the mix, which enables our design team to deliver the very best collections for our customers.

To my mind luxury, a word we use so often in our industry, has come to mean something more subtle, more suggested than what has been traditionally opulent. Luxury is as much about a feeling and time to reflect in our homes than as it is about a product. That's something we consider at Eichholtz as we put together collections: the warmth and forever style that is part of a luxury lifestyle.

While our collections cover a broad spectrum of aesthetic choices, timelessness is the signature that defines the Eichholtz look. With that comes the importance we place on presentation, the flair with which we curate collections in our showrooms, at the trade fairs and through our photography.

For the Spring / Summer collection we've focused on softness, seen in rounder, more organic forms, beautifully faded jewel tones and earthy neutrals, and upholstery that offers texture and tactility. The new lighting collection features brushed metals and delicate alabaster finishes. Our aim is always to add an element of surprise, something wonderfully unexpected to please and delight our audience.

“We're always thinking about what would fit in the collection, what do customers like and need.”

EDWIN VAN DER GUN, CREATIVE DIRECTOR

“This season everything feels softer, and rounder and lighting has a warmer glow.”

INTRODUCING THE LATEST COLLECTION

This season, Eichholtz is focusing on its trademark timeless elegance and the warmth the brand is renowned for. With founder Theo Eichholtz overseeing product development materials feel especially noble, such as marble and alabaster in lighting and the unexpected textural richness of travertine in occasional tables.

There's plenty of softness in the new collection too. From the beautifully curved silhouettes of armchairs and extravagantly oversized sofas to the sumptuousness of fabrics such as bouclé and velvet, this season feels especially inviting. Accessories, such as vases and bowls take on the whispers of vintage styling in their organic forms as do the more informal seating, especially the swivel chairs on fine brass plinths. There's a newness in the spring color palette too that spans the signature earthy neutrals, but now moves into muted jewel tones such as amber and ruby and onyx as well. Metallic detailing has been toned down for spring with burnished trims on brass-edged mirrors and as well as the frames of dining chairs and consoles.
